

I am a resident of Indiana. We are self-employed and receive both business and personal calls at one number. Since Indiana has enforced their no-call list the number of "junk" phone calls are almost nonexistent. No more interrupted dinners, or dashing to the phone only to realize it's someone wanting you to change phone companies, buy lightbulbs, survey, survey, survey. Send it in the mail - then I can deal with it on my time - when I have time!!! Also then at least you have an address to go back on if you have a problem in the future. I don't like to hang up on people, but just got really sick of trying to be polite and say I'm not interested please take me off your list to hear "but don't you want to save money!!!?" I will solicit the people I wish to do business with! Now the very few calls I get I just say "My number is on a no-call list" and people politely hang up.

Don't jeopardize Indiana's law - anything less would be an injustice!!!!

Sincerely,

Joyce Hoffman
